Contents, Volume 9

Volume 9 No. 1 2001

An integrated exploratory approach to examining the relationships of environmental stressors and fish responses
Susanna T.Y. Tong 1–19

Spatial variability in the response of lower trophic levels after carp exclusion from a freshwater marsh
Vanessa L. Lougheed, Patricia Chow-Fraser 21–34

Evaluation of potential health risks to Eastern Elliptio (Elliptio complanata) (Mollusca: Bivalvia: Unionida: Unionidae) and implications for sympatric endangered freshwater mussel species
Beth Chittick, Michael Stoskopf, Mac Law, Robin Overstreet, Jay Levine 35–42

Vertical migration of infaunal invertebrates in response to dosing with secondary treated sewage effluent: a microcosm experiment
Liz Morris, Michael J. Keough 43–65

Research note

Development of methods to assess the impact of herbicide use on the benthos of littoral impoundments in northeast Brazil
Vania Maria de Medeiros, Takako Watanabe, Reginald R. Coler, Robert Anthony Coler 67–71

Volume 9 No. 2 2002

Intensive fish predation: an obstacle to biological recovery following liming of acidified lakes?
Jens Petter Nilssen, Svein Birger Wærvågen 73–84

Utility of mobile, field-based artificial streams for assessing effects of pulp mill effluents on fish in the Canadian environmental effects monitoring (EEM) program
Monique Dubé, Deborah MacLatchy, Joseph Culp, Gregory Gillis, Roy Parker, Simon Courtenay, Christine Gilman 85–102

Risk evaluation of cyanobacteria-dominated algal blooms in a North Louisiana reservoir
Brian J. Mastin, John H. Rodgers, Jr., Thomas L. Deardorff 103–114

Application of truss analysis for the quantification of changes in fish condition
Dean G. Fitzgerald, Jeffrey W. Nanson, Thomas N. Todd, Bruce M. Davis 115–125

Effects of coastal reclamation on riverine macrobenthic infauna (Sungei Punggol) in Singapore
L. Lu, B.P.L. Goh, L.M. Chou 127–135

Volume 9 No. 3 November 2002

Comparison of dietary mercury exposure in two sympatric top predator fishes, largemouth bass and northern pike: a bioenergetics modeling approach
Nicole K. MacRury, Brian D.S. Graeb, Brett M. Johnson, William H. Clements 137–147

Temporal variability in fish assemblages from disturbed and undisturbed streams
Michael H. Paller 149–158

Stream ecosystem response to, and recovery from, experimental exposure to selenium
Michael C. Swift 159–184

Evaluation of the meiobenthic copepod Bryocamptus zschokkei (Schmeil) as an ecologically-relevant test organism for lotic freshwaters
S.M. Burton, S.D. Rundle, M.B. Jones 185–191

Response of the waterlouse Asellus aquaticus to multiple stressors: effects of current velocity and mineral substratum
E.T.H.M. Peeters, J.M. Camu, J.A.J. Beijer, M. Scheffer, J.J.P. Gardeniers 193–203

Residual effects of 3,4-dichloroaniline on offspring born to Ceriodaphnia cf. dubia exposed for multiple generations
Rebecca M. Rose, Michael St. J. Warne, Richard P. Lim 205–211

Sediment quality of the Neuse River estuary, North Carolina: an integrated assessment of sediment contamination, toxicity, and condition of benthic fauna
W.L. Balthis, J.L. Hyland, G.I. Scott, M.H. Fulton, D.W. Bearden, M.D. Greene 213–225

Volume 9 No. 4 December 2002

Publisher's Note iii

Effects of sediment loads on the fish and invertebrates of a Sierra Nevada river, California
Mark F. Gard 227–238

Ethoxyresorufin O-deethylase (EROD) activity and fluctuating asymmetry (FA) in Zosterisessor ophiocephalus (Teleostei, Gobiidae) as indicators of environmental stress in the Venice lagoon
Anita Franco, Stefano Malavasi, Fabio Pranovi, Cristina Nasci, Patrizia Torricelli 239–247

The distribution of Austrocrangonyx new species (Crustacea: Amphipoda) on the eastern New England plateau, Australia, with reference to riparian clearing
Katie Brown, Brian V. Timms 249–258

Biomarkers of exposure in fish inhabiting the Swan–Canning Estuary, Western Australia – a preliminary studys
Diane Webb, Marthe Monique Gagnon 259–269

Comparison of Asian clam field bioassays and benthic community surveys in quantifying effects of a coal-fired power plant effluent on Clinch River biota
M.S. Hull, D.S. Cherry, D.J. Soucek, R.J. Currie, R.J. Neves 271–283

Instructions for authors 285–287

Author index 289

Volume contents 291–292